Purposes for which we may use your personal data in Alpha the Release in Future

We may process your personal data to do the following:

- Allow you to receive payments for data you provide on the Marketplace
- Allow you to receive content from the data products that you have purchased or subscribed to;
- Seek your comments, feedback and suggestions on the functionality D Frame
- Notify you of changes, upgrades or problems in the functionality of D Frame
- Send you communications which you have requested and which may be of interest to you

Legal Basis for Processing Your Data in the Alpha Release for Future

The processing of your personal data is necessary for the performance of the contractual relationship between D Frame and you.

We may also process your personal data based on our legitimate interests. This means that we have a legitimate interest to process your personal data for example based on our relationship with you as a user, there is a limited privacy impact on you, and you should reasonably expect your data to be used that way. D frame has a legitimate interest, for example, to process your personal data to develop its business, based on the contractual relationship between you and D Frame.

We may also process your personal data for specific purposes based on your consent, if we have separately requested and obtained your consent. For example, we may ask for consent to use your email address for marketing purposes.

Security of Data for Alpha Release in the Future

D Frame is concerned about the security of your data. We have implemented technical security measures that are designed to help protect your information from unauthorized access, disclosure, use and modification. From time-to-time, we review our security procedures to consider appropriate new technologies and methods.

Please be aware that despite our efforts, no security measures are perfect or impenetrable. We cannot ensure, and do not warrant or guarantee that the information you transmit will always remain secure, nor do we guarantee that this information will not be accessed, disclosed, altered, destroyed or used in an unauthorized manner.

If we learn of a security breach, we may attempt to notify you electronically so that you can take appropriate protective steps. We may also post a notice on our website or in the D Frame extension if a security breach occurs. Depending on where you live, you may have a legal right to receive a notice of a security breach in writing.

Data Retention for Alpha Release in the Future

We will retain your personal data only for as long as it is necessary for the purpose for which it was collected or delivered, and will delete (or ask to be deleted if delivered already to any 3rd party company) any personal data that is no longer relevant. This means that we will keep your personal data that is necessary to implement our agreement with you for as long as you maintain a D Frame user account or for as long as reasonably necessary to fulfil the purposes we collected it for, whichever is longest, as well as until the expiry of any applicable claim periods after this. We will also comply with any applicable laws or statutes which obligate us to retain your personal data for a specific time period, such as the mandatory retention periods under accounting laws and regulations.

As regards any personal data that we process based on your consent, we will retain such data for as long as it is relevant for the purpose for which the data was collected or delivered, up to a maximum of 18 months for collected (but not delivered) data, unless you withdraw your consent before that.

You may request to close your D Frame account at any time. After we receive your request to close the account, we will do so without delay, as long as you have no outstanding obligations as a data provider on the Data Marketplace. We will delete all your personal data when your account is closed, excluding any data that was separately licensed, sold, and/or delivered to 3rd party companies by you, unless there are applicable laws or statutes which obligate us to retain your personal data for longer.

Your Legal Rights

You have various rights with regard to your personal data. Please note that the particular rights may be subject to qualifications or specific requirements arising from, for example, applicable laws, that are not fully described here.

- Right to access your personal data: You have the right to obtain confirmation from us whether your personal data is being processed. You also have the right to access your personal data and to obtain certain information, such as the purposes of processing your personal data and the types of personal data involved.

- Right to rectification: You have the right to request us to correct inaccurate personal data about you.
- Right to erasure: You have the right to request us to erase personal data about you in certain situations, such as if the data is no longer necessary for the purposes for which it was collected, if processing such data is unlawful or if the data was processed based on consent and you withdraw your consent.
- Right to restriction of processing your personal data: You have the right to restrict processing of your personal data in certain situations. If you exercise this right, we are generally only allowed to store the data in question. You might exercise this right, for example, if you believe that the personal data we hold about you is inaccurate, in which case your right to restriction of processing would apply for the time that it takes us to verify whether your belief is correct.
- Right to object to processing your personal data: You have at any time the right to object to processing your personal data for direct marketing purposes. You are also entitled to, on the grounds of your particular situation, object to processing of your personal data that we do based on our legitimate interest.
- Right to data portability: You have the right to obtain your personal data in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and to transfer the data to another controller, if we process your personal data based on your consent or because of a contract that we have entered with you. For this right to be available to you, our processing of your personal data must take place by automated means.
- Right to withdraw your consent: To the extent we process your personal data based on your consent, you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time. You can do so by sending an email to dframe.org@gmail.com. You can also manage your consent preferences by ticking the relevant boxes in the modules section of settings in D Frame extension Alpha Release. Withdrawing your consent does not affect the lawfulness of the processing of your personal data based on consent before its withdrawal.

- Right to make a complaint with the data protection authorities: You have the right to make a complaint with the data protection authorities concerning our processing of your personal data. You can complain with the data protection authority of the EU member state where you have your permanent residence or where you work, or where you find that a potential breach with regard to your personal data has occurred.
